Bird Feeding: the Cure for Cabin Fever

Have you had your fill of winter? Need a prescription for that cabin fever that won't seem to go away?

Well, say "hello" to March, a great month to get outside and begin preparing your yard for the upcoming spring bird action.

Start by cleaning your feeders, bird feeding stations and baffles, repairing any weather damage and raking up any debris under your feeding stations.

You may start seeing different birds at your feeders, as winter begins to loosen its grasp. Some birds, such as finches, may start to bring new color and life to your yard as they begin the process of molting into their vibrant breeding plumage.

Offering new foods can help you attract more birds to your newly-refreshed yard.

Insects
In spring, a bird's need for protein increases dramatically. Loaded with protein, mealworms can help you attract common and uncommon insect-eating birds, such as flickers. Bird parents will often bring their offspring to feeders and feed them. Also, Mason Bees will be emerging soon. Plan to join our Free seminar on March 19th to learn all about this gentle pollinator.

Suet and Fats
Suet is a high-energy, high-fat substance that is helpful in spring (especially when loaded with nuts), when birds are looking for supplemental sources of nutrition.

Berries and Fruit
Fresh and dried fruits are popular with birds, such as robins, waxwings, finches and the occasional orioles, and they help provide proper color pigments for new feathers and other nutritional needs. Many of our WBU Suet, Seed Cylinders, Seed Stackables and Jim's Birdacious® BugBerry™ Blend Treats feature fruit.

Peanuts
Loaded with protein and fat, peanuts provide birds with the necessary energy to defend territories and raise healthy families.

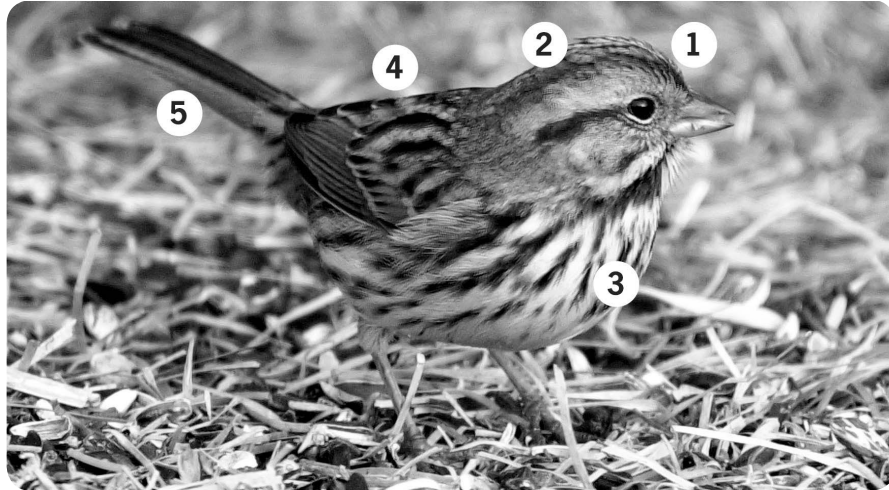

Stop by the store this month. We have all the new foods, including our NEW No Mess Blend with no millet. Bring more birds to your yard to help you get over any lingering effects of winter.

How To Better Identify Birds

As the seasons change, you may see birds you don't know. To identify lesser-known birds, practice answering the following questions, looking at a bird from the top down.

1. Silhouette

Look at the bird's overall size, shape and posture. Is it the size of something familiar like a sparrow, robin or crow? How does it sit, perch or fly?

2. Head Markings

Does the bird have a colorful or striped cap, also known as a crown? Is there a stripe above or through the eye, or does it have an eye ring or "spectacles?" Look for cheek patches or a mustache. Is there a white throat patch?

3. Body Markings

What are the overall back, breast and belly colors? What's on the chest: a patch, spots, streaks or is it clear? Are the flanks (sides of body) clear or streaked? Is there a white or yellow rump patch?

4. Wing Markings

Are the wings a different color than the body? Are there wing bars or spots?

5. Tail Shape and Markings

Is the tail long or short compared to the body? Is it forked, squared, pointed or another shape? Are there certain colors or vertical or horizontal stripes?

We offer a variety of binoculars that will provide clear views and field guides that will help you determine a bird's identity. With practice, you will quickly gather all the clues you need to positively identify birds.

And don't forget that we are giving away FREE Cornell Bird ID Poster while supplies last.

Try Our New No Mess (NM) Blend

You Asked For It, You Got It!

We are introducing our NEW no millet No Mess Blend during this seed sale. Some of you have requested that we take out the hulled millet. We did that and replaced it with chopped tree nuts. We now have an extremely rich blend of sunflower chips, peanuts and tree nuts.

Great Spring Additions for Any Yard

EcoClean Dinner Bell

Our versatile Dinner Bell™ is now available with EcoClean™ antimicrobial product protection built into the tray. The clear dome allows birds to easily find food and raises and lowers, allowing you to feed smaller birds while deterring larger birds. Backed with a lifetime guarantee, the Dinner Bell is easy to fill and hang, and its tray is top rack, dishwasher safe.

$39.99

On-Guard Cages

With our On-Guard Cages, you control the size of birds that dine at your feeders. On-Guard Cages allow small birds, such as finches, chickadees and others, to go in and out to get their seed but stop larger birds and animals from entering. Our cages will fit a variety of feeder styles and sizes.

$36.99

NEW Jim's Birdacious Bark Butter Bricks

Jim's Birdacious® Bark Butter® is already enjoyed by more than 100 different bird species. Now we have regular Bark Butter Bricks and BugBerry™ Blend Bark Butter Bricks. They are the same size/shape as a suet cake and very easy to use. Just place one in any suet or tail prop feeder to attract a variety of birds, including many that do not normally visit feeders.
